

Chapter Quiz

In the following quiz, you will be tested on concepts you learned in this chapter.

Variables are used for storing data.

What role does the variable name play when declaring a variable?

What type includes integers and doubles?

What is the default value of an uninitialized variable?

5

In which of the following examples are we not assigning a literal to the variable `b`?

6

What is string interpolation?

7

What would the output be of the given code?

```
main() {
    print("3 + 2 = ${3 + 2}");
}
```

8

Which of the following examples is using type inference?

Which of the following comes first?

Retake Quiz

In the next chapter, we will learn about operators.