

A Few Thank Yous

And that's a wrap! Thank you for reading this course.

This course would have never been possible without the help of some critical people:

- You, the reader of this course. Without your support and the time and resources you spent going through this course it would have been impossible for me to find the motivation to go through with this project.
- Alessandro “Cirpo” Cinelli, a very close friend of mine. Cirpo and I share the passion for helping the software engineering community out there, and it is because of him that I find the strength, as every day passes by, to dedicate time to side projects such as this.
- Boris Hajduk, once the CISO of a company I worked for, Boris is an extremely intelligent security professional who helped me understand the value of security and I like to think that his no-BS approach inspired me and my work.
- Troy Hunt who, if you read the course, doesn't need many introductions. I wanted to take a moment to thank him for his work as well as the fact that he transparently shares much of it with the public. Without people like him we, as a community, would be far behind.
- Scott Helme, a name that should sound familiar, once again, if you read this course. I want to thank Scott for the same exact reason I mentioned Troy Hunt earlier: without him, we'd be behind.

---

Goodbye folks – thank you again.